Fed by a record rainfall that showed no signs of letting up, the Scioto river and streams of the area raced toward new high stages
Tuesday noon.

Many roads in this vicinity were closed following nearly three inches of rain, most of which fell Monday night and Tuesday morning. Heavy rains continued despite forecasts of colder weather and a general flood was feared.

Heaviest rainfall in the history
of the local weather bureau pushed
the Scioto river into the fastest rise in the past five years, 4 inches
per hour, Roy Hawkes, weather observer, said at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. The river is expected to reach a crest of 21 feet Wednesday or Wednesday night.

Precipitation of 3.56 inches was recorded in the 24 hour period ending Tuesday at 7 a. m. closing
most of the highways in this vicinity.

The State Highway Department
listed the following routes closed at 11 a. m. Tuesday: Route 23 was under 5 feet of water at Bell Siding, Laurel creek was over Route 56 at Laurelvale, Route 138 was closed 2 miles east of Clarksburg
at a culvert washout, Route 180

FARMER SENT TO NAVY AFTER LOSING APPEAL

COLUMBUS, March 6—Harry
O. Crawbaugh, Jr., 28, of Marion,
was sent to a Navy training station Monday. Crawbaugh had sought a writ of habeas corpus from Federal Judge Mel G. Underwood to prevent his induction.

Because he managed his father's 387 acre farm he maintained that his induction was a violation of the Tydings amendment, a bill which exempts irreplaceable farm workers. Crawbaugh had been ordered to report for induction by his Marion county draft board No. 2
on February 23.

Judge Underwood in denying the writ said that he was of the opinion "none of the facts or conditions which would invalidate the action of the draft board have been established. The court has no authority to examine the proceedings of the draft board and substitute its own determination or conclusion for that of the board."

Ohio River Heads For New High

Veteran Observers Refuse
To Estimate Crest
It Will Reach

BULLETIN

A 70-foot flood crest, less than ten feet below the disastrous peak of 1937, was forecast
Tuesday for Cincinnati as pouring rains drenched the watershed of the swollen Ohio river
from Pittsburgh to Louisville.

By United Press

Fed by hard overnight rains, the Ohio river rose nearly two feet at Cincinnati Tuesday and army engineers called for volunteers to help sandbag Mill creek barrier
dam protecting the city's industries from Ohio backwater.

A three-inch rain was pouring into the southern Ohio reaches of the river and more rain was forecast.

State guardsmen were alerted
for flood duty in the Cincinnati
area as backwater seeped around the Mill creek barrier and backed
the creek out of its banks in the heavily industrialized section of the city.

The river rose from 61.9 feet at midnight to 64 feet at 8 a. m.

Heavy rains were falling throughout the upper watershed of the Ohio and its principal tributaries. A 1.35-inch rainfall fell in the Pennsylvania watershed and was running into the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

Where the two converge to form
the Ohio at Pittsburgh's famed—and much-flooded—golden triangle, a crest of 27 feet, two feet
over flood stage, was forecast for early Wednesday.

With the Ohio out of its banks
from Pittsburgh to Louisville and rain falling steadily throughout its course, veteran river observers refused to estimate possible crests.

Colder weather, snow and more rain were forecasts for the Ohio valley Tuesday.

The Ohio went a foot over flood stage at Marietta, O., and was rising at 2 feet an hour at Bellaire, O., where nearly three inches of rain fell in 24 hours.

Miners and war industry workers in the industrial area around Wheeling, W. Va., and Bellaire were cut off from their jobs by flood-disrupted transportation.

GOEBBELS MAY BE ONLY NAZI LEFT IN BERLIN

LONDON, March 6.—The London Daily Mail reported from Stockholm today that the German government evacuated most of its offices from Berlin to Berchtesgaden, Adolf Hitler's Bavarian retreat, last weekend.

Only well-known Nazi leader remaining in bomb-battered Berlin
was Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, commandant for defense of the capital, the dispatch said.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop was said to have gone
to his castle at Fuschl, near Salzburg, in the Austrian Alps, but the foreign office spokesman, Dr.
Ernst Brauwer, stayed in Berlin
to give the appearance that everything was normal.

Heinrich Himmler, commander
of the home army, interior minister and Gestapo chief, set up headquarters on the Pomeranian front,
the Daily Mail said.

Martin Bormann, Nazi party
leader, was reported at Hitler's side at Berchtesgaden.

Martin von Hallensleben, military commentator for the official German DNB agency, said the war
in Europe had entered a stage
"from which it may be expected that the outcome of this second
great world struggle will be decided."

"This week may be the beginning of a completely new war development," he added enigmatically.
"All doors are open for such an eventuality."

Door May Be Left Open For Argentina To Return To American Family

MEXICO CITY, March 6.—The inter-American conference worked today on a formula that would permit Argentina to adhere to the declarations of hemispheric cooperation adopted by all the other Americas
at the meeting drawing to a close here.

Indications were that there would be no direct attempt to solve what has become known as the Argentine problem—her remaining ties with the Axis and her exclusion from the meeting of American republics because of those ties. The general attitude was that the door would be left open for her to return to the family of American nations at her own request after she has shown that she accepts the principles adhered to by all the others.

The United States delegation
was very wary of any formula
that the public at home could call "appeasement." For a year now the U. S. government has been condemning the present
Argentine government as a
"fascist-military" clique and contending that normal relations
could not be established with it until it "conclusively demonstrates" by unequivocal action that there has been a fundamental change.

Ranking second in importance to the Argentine question at this stage of the conference was the concern of U. S. officials about a Washington dispatch saying the "act of Chapultepec" and the Dumbarton Oaks plan were in conflict and that one must give way.

'THE VOICE' PUT IN 4-F; WORK 'NOT ESSENTIAL'

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 6—Frank Sinatra's draft board has decided that Sinatra's crooning baritone is not "necessary for the national health, safety and interest."

Ira W. Caldwell, chairman of the board, announced last week that the crooner had been in 2-A (F), a category reserved for men not fit for military duty but in essential work.

The board changed that classification last night and reclassified Sinatra 4-F. He has a punctured eardrum. The 4-F classification would make the singer liable to work draft under proposed work-
or-fight legislation.

BY C. R. CUNNINGHAM

COLOGNE, March 5.—The spires of Cologne's magnificent cathedral
—The Dom—stretched undamaged into the sky today like a beacon
for the American troops inside this Rhineland city.

Block after block around the great 13th century church was a levelled mass of ruins, but the cathedral itself was still believed untouched
by the ravages of war.

From the smoldering debris on both sides, great plumes of smoke
billowed into the sky, possibly from a gasoline dump that had been hit. But amid those blackened clouds, the Dom's towers remained in sight throughout the day as a light guiding the Americans to their goal.

While the Germans probably will attempt a firm stand somewhere in the center of the city,
which is clustered around the cathedral, the Americans hope they will spare the historic church.

"It's a cinch we won't touch it unless we have to," one colonel said, pointing out it would make a good defensive point for the Germans. "I hope they respect it."

Although the outer edges of Co-logne are not damaged as much as Aachen, officers said the degree of ruins becomes greater toward the center of the city.

ted Press correspondent who entered with the First army, said

NIP POSITION CRITICAL

100,000 Reported Killed
On Luzon, Others
Face Annihilation

By United Press

Japanese armies in the Philippines and Burma were crumbling
today before the weight of American and Allied troops, while on Iwo U. S. Marines prepared for an all-out assault on the last enemy
defenders.

The biggest setback for the Japanese came on Luzon, where American troops and Filipino guerrillas already had destroyed
six enemy divisions—possibly 100-000 men—and broke the remaining four divisions into three scattered pockets.

The Japanese position on Luzon
was officially described as "critical." The combined American-Filipino forces were steadily closing in
on the enemy groups for the kill.

On bloody Iwo, at the doorstep to Tokyo, U. S. Marines were massing strength for an all-out assault to split and annihilate the last thousands of Japanese in the northern end of the island.

Although the battlelines on Iwo
remained practically unchanged,
casualties on both sides increased considerably. The count of Japanese dead officially reached 12-864, although it was estimated that three-fourths of the original garrison of 20,000 had been wiped out. American dead for the first 13 days totaled 2,050.

In Burma, more than 30,000
Japanese were virtually trapped at Mandalay when armored Indian forces raced 85 miles across Burma in 10 days and captured
Meiktila, 80 miles south of Mandalay.

Single American superfort-resses again raided Japan's main home island of Honshu, including Tokyo, last night, according to enemy broadcasts. The other targets beside the capital were Waka-
yama, the Osaka-Kobe area, Shimonoseki and the Nagoya
region.

Coal Strike Decision Expected To Be Made By John L. Lewis Today

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The nation may learn today if John L.
Lewis will take his United Mine Workers out on a wartime strike to win a 10-cents a ton royalty on all soft coal mined in the country.

Soft coal operators promised to give Lewis a formal reply today on his royalty demand, and a spokesman said it would require the mine
chief to "tip his hand" on a strike call.

The operators either will reject the demand outright or accept it on conditions that would sharply limit Lewis' contemplated use of the accumulated royalties. The next move will be up to Lewis.

SYNTHETIC TIRE PIONEER'S WORK 'NON-ESSENTIAL'

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 6.—The man credited with making America's first synthetic rubber tire was non-essential today as far as the OPA was concerned. He can have no new tires for his automobile.

The A card-holding scientist is Dr. Lucas P. Kyrides. The OPA
ruled late yesterday that he must get along with his worn pre-war
tires and minimum of gasoline—
even if he is the father of American synthetic rubber.

Dr. Kyrides, 61-year-old director of organic chemical research
at Monsanto Chemical Co. here,
last night was given the first Midwest award of the American Chemical Society for discovering synthetic rubber, in 1913, and other notable findings.

But officials of the firm had to announce at a testimonial dinner
in the Turkish-born scientist's
honor that they couldn't give him
a set of new tires for his car as they had planned to do.

A company spokesman revealed
that a futile effort had been made,
by long distance call and telegram

Kyrides a higher motoring classification—and tires. The company said their chief chemist was essential, but the OPA didn't agree.

THIRD OF CITY TAKEN WITHOUT NAZI OPPOSITION

General Retreat Across Rhine Believed To Be Underway

EXPLOSIONS ROCK TOWN

Germans Conceding Defeat
In Rhineland Battle,
Stockholm Reports

PARIS, March 6.—The fall of Cologne appeared imminent today
and roundabout Berlin reports said the Nazi high command has ordered a general retreat across the Rhine.

Converging spearheads of three American First Army divisions already had overrun more than one-third of Cologne without meeting
more than half-hearted resistance
from German snipers.

Twenty-four hours after their entry into the city's outskirts, the Yanks were at or beyond the ancient wall ringing the fortified
center of Cologne. Fires and explosions shook the inner citadel,
indicating the remaining Germans were putting the torch to their last strongholds and preparing to flee across the river.

Stockholm press dispatches
from Berlin said the Germans
themselves were conceding defeat
in the 12 day battle of the Rhineland.

The Dagens Nyheter's Berlin
correspondent, quoting Nazi military sources, said the German high command had ordered a general retreat to "loosen our armies
from the Rhine and take advantage of an elastic defense deep in the hinterland behind the river."

Hold Bridgeheads
"Only a few major bridgeheads
will be held until the radical retreat movement has been completed," the dispatch said.

The Nazis' potentially strongest bridgehead at Cologne already was collapsing under the terrific pressure of Lt. Gen. Courtney H.
Hodges' U. S. First Army forces.
Advancing through a dense pall
of smoke and flame mushrooming
out from the center of the stricken city, armored and infantry elements of three American First Army divisions were more than a mile inside Cologne at daybreak
and advancing against sporadic opposition.

All the northwestern, western
and southwestern perimeter of the city was in American hands and the way was open for a smashing
thrust to the banks of the Rhine,
less than two miles ahead of the converging Yank Spearheads.

Report 'Dead City'
American dive-bomber pilots
who barreled down to roof-top level in search of German strong-points reported that Cologne appeared to be a dead city this morning. There was no sign of life in the central streets and the central span of the huge Hohensolern bridge was believed to have been knocked out.

As the Americans closed in to clinch their biggest triumph of the 12-day offensive, other First Army forces to the north were teaming up with the American Ninth and Canadian First Armies
to write off the remnants of three German armies on the west bank of the Rhine.

Units of the First Army were mopping up disorganized Nazi pockets along the Rhine bank between Cologne and the Dueseldorf
crossings 20 miles to the north.

Twenty to 30 miles beyond Dueseldorf, the U. S. Ninth and the Canadian First were crushing
the last major German bridgehead
west of the Rhine. There the Germans still were struggling desperately to extricate the survivors of their first paratroop army through a narrowing bottleneck centered
around the Wesel road and railway bridges.

The Canadians on the north and the Yanks on the south and west
squeezed in the sides of the Wesel passage to less than ten miles and opened a murderous barrage on the troop-choked bridges.

Bridges Damaged
Both Wesel bridges were badly
cratered by bomb and shell hits
and field dispatches indicated the Nazis were abandoning the bulk of their armor and heavy equipment
west of the river

ernment may do it on a scale which would endanger free enterprise.

Charles O'Neill, president of the Central Pennsylvania Producers association, indicated in a statement that the answer would be one of two things. He said first that the Lewis proposal had no place in the joint wage conference but added that "any plan of insurance and social welfare that might be adopted by the operators would have to be on an actuarial basis set up and administered by the companies."

The operators formally acknowledged that the biggest stumbling blocks to an early agreement were the demands for a royalty and a 34-hour week with time and one-half pay for all hours over seven a day and 35 a week.

The producers estimated that this second demand would amount to $1.07 per day increase for the miners. Under the present scale of time and one-half pay after 40 hours a week and two-thirds pay for travel time, a miner who works a full 34 hour week receives $57.06. The Lewis demand would increase this figure to $63.50, or $6.42 a week more.

Spokesmen believed this request runs counter to wage stabilization policy. The War Labor Board has approved time and one-half pay after 40 hours instead of the 35-hour limit provided by the UMW contract of 1941-43.

MINISTERS MAKE PLANS FOR GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE

Fourteen ministers attended the meeting of the Pickaway County Ministerial association Monday in the Morris Chapel, near Thatcher. The report of the secretary-treasurer showed that the association recently contributed a check for $35 to Berger hospital as a gift from the Thanksgiving offering.

Rev. D. F. Woodworth of the Ashville Methodist church led in the devotions and then conducted a general discussion on "Stewardship and The Attitude We Should Take Toward Material Things." It was the expressed opinion that our giving to the support of our churches should not be a matter of "collections" for the sake of raising the budgets of our churches but rather a giving of and sharing of a portion of our lives with our Lord.

A letter was approved to be sent to our Representatives and Senators encouraging them to use their influence in passing certain bills before the State Legislature which will amend the gambling law so as to make it unlawful for churches as well as individuals to participate in bingo games and gambling for profit.

Plans were also started for a union Good Friday Service to be held in the Presbyterian church. The next meeting of the association will be held April 2 in the Evangelical church in Circleville.

STRIKING STREET CAR EMPLOYEES PLACED IN 1-A

READING, Pa., March 6—Striking employees of the Reading Street Railway Company faced reclassification by their draft boards today as their bus and trolley walk-out entered its tenth day.

The reclassification of men of draft age to 1-A was announced by a draft board at Lebanon, Pa., which also is affected by the strike. A board at Myerstown, Pa., in the strike area, said it would meet today to consider similar action.

The boards said they followed Selective Service rulings classifying men under 35 years of age, not engaged in war work, in 1-A. The procedure is a "normal one," draft board officials said. The strikers were considered unemployed.

The stalemate continued as company officials said they would take no action while the men remained on strike. The employees said they would not resume work until their grievances are settled.

FEBRUARY PLANE PRODUCTION WAS BELOW SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON, March 6—The War Production Board announced today that 6,256 airplanes were accepted in February. But, it added, plane production was nearly three per cent below schedule.

It was the fourth consecutive month in which production failed to meet the goals set for it. Seriousness of the continued below-schedule output is "further magnified," WPB said, by the fact that actual military requirements in many instances exceed the working schedules.

The February output totaled 71,300,000 pounds in terms of airframe weight, exclusive of spares. This was slightly less than January production, the announcement said. Although 249 fewer planes were accepted in February than in the preceding month, the actual daily rate of output rose slightly more than nine per cent— from 242 in January to 262 in February, which had only 28 days.

The WPB's aircraft production board presented the following tabulation of February output:

Bombers, scheduled, 2,364; produced, 2,263 or 4.3 per cent behind schedule.

Fighters and naval reconnaissance, scheduled, 2,940; produced, 2,873, or 2.3 behind.

Transports, scheduled, 600; produced, 604, or .6 ahead.

Trainers, scheduled, 207; produced, 207, on schedule.

Communications and special purpose, scheduled, 343; produced, 339, or 1.2 behind.

Total production, 6,434 scheduled, produced 6,256 or 2.6 behind.

DETROIT, March 6.—(UP)—Efforts to settle a labor dispute which has halted war production at Seven Briggs Mfg. Co., plants since Thursday remained deadlocked today.

Approximately 15,000 United Auto workers (CIO) union members were affected by the walk-out, which began at the Mack avenue plant in protest against dismissal of workers accused of instigating previous strikes. Additional discharges of men who allegedly organized the present walkout have brought the number dismissed to 15.

The plants produce parts for B-29 Superfortresses, other aircraft and tanks, and ambulance bodies. The UAW-CIO local 212 executive board decided yesterday to remain on strike until the company reinstates the discharged workers. The company replied that under War Labor Board procedure no dispute can be negotiated during a strike.

The Regional War Labor board had no comment.

CHURCHILL HOME FROM TOUR OF WESTERN FRONT

LONDON, March 6.—Prime Minister Churchill today returned to the soil of Germany last week-end when he toured the western front and conferred with Allied military commanders.

Churchill's trip was announced today after he returned to London. He talks with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and other commanders were believed to have dealt with plans for crossing the Rhine and driving into Germany to link up with the Russians.

A considerable part of Churchill's traveling on the continent was on German territory. Churchill also visited the headquarters of Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the 21st army group, and discussed operations with other Allied commanders.

He visited British and Canadian troops of the Canadian First army and units of the American Ninth army.

THOMAS B. WOLF, 86, DIES IN CITY HOSPITAL

Thomas Babington Wolf, 86, died Tuesday at 8 a. m. in Berger hospital where he had been a patient since January 12. Mr. Wolf, who had made his home recently with his son, Forrest Wolf, of near Laureville, suffered a hip fracture and was removed to the hospital for treatment on that date.

Mr. Wolf was a member of the Adelphi Masonic lodge, an honorary member of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Laureville and a member of the Laureville Methodist church.

HOME IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

But, Boy, It Takes Plenty of Practice!

By K. F. HEWINS
Central Press Correspondent

WHEN THOSE ESTEEMED GENTLEMEN known as "We, the People of the United States," put a phrase into their documentary preamble "to insure domestic tranquility," they failed to take into account some of the home-building deficiencies of man and mate who have mistaken themselves for the "more perfect union."

There cannot be domestic tranquility on a wide scale until more of these more perfect unions have been built at least two homes of their own.

Until you tear down your first home and build another one as it should have been built in the first place, you won't be able to "secure the blessings of liberty" for yourself, even, not to mention the posterity angle.

I don't blame the framers of the Constitution for uttering a platform promise they couldn't carry out. Posterity undoubtedly gives those early writers credit for a pretty fair job, especially since all that they had to write with was a spare quill from Old M. Goose.

I do blame the architects, contractors, carpenters, the plain hammer and nail men—and all the rest of us who do not know how to build a house that will insure domestic tranquility, like the Constitution says.

I have been sitting here reviewing some of the architectural mistakes I made with my first home-erecting venture and recalling construction errors I have heard others wail about.

Some of these matters are about to be put down here in black and white, as a public service feature of this newspaper. Kindly keep these suggestions under your hat until the war is over and you can build.

To begin with, everyone should build two houses at the same time on the same lot—one to live in and the other for the newboys to throw at.

That may sound rather silly, at first. But I can assure you that these carriers of the latest news and pictures must not be taken too lightly. I ought to know, for I used to fling 'em a little, myself.

And today, as my hair is beginning to turn to skin, I offer as evidence the first home which I had some specialists in splinters, studs, sub-flooring and such construction to promote the general welfare of mine and me. Our window screen and front door screens are dented in relief like the Himalaya mountains.

So the word is, starting at the front of the house: Eliminate all windows and doors.

Of course, there are some optional suggestions in this connection. If you know of a jail that is going out of business you might engage the bars and thus safeguard the screens.

While some of the newboys, especially the afternoon variety, have good aim on the screens, the early morning carriers, cycling in the dark, often miss the house entirely.

If you have the patience, you may eventually find the morning paper amidst the bushes in front of the porch. To purloin the tightly folded publication, you are obliged to get down on your hands and knees and reach through the vegetation, either soaking your sleeves with dew or freezing same with frost, as the weather may be.

So it is recommended that there be no bushes in front of the house if you want a home of perfect serenity.

I also see a good many folded newspapers rain-stained and gray with grime, on tops of porches around town. In order to stop that, build your house without a front porch, which is not to have any bushes in front of it.

After you have built your home and she starts to settle, the floor will pop and bang, particularly in sleepless nighttimes, and you will be disturbed and think maybe burglars are at large.

You can get around that by building your home without a floor. Lincoln's folks had the right idea. They didn't have any floor in their house; and look where old Honest Abe got to!

In building your home you should be considerate of the demands of rats, mice and roaches. The courteous thing would be to drill

"Rats," "Mice," and "Roaches." Add the word "Welcome" above the holes.

If these rodents and bugs cannot read, that is one of the few things they cannot do. There's no use to try to stop these pests from coming in and making themselves at home if they want to spend some time with you.

There is also another form of animal life to be reckoned with, namely, the termite. Be sure that your foundation garments are thoroughly creosoted. The creosote won't stop the termites, of course, but it will gum up their teeth and slow them down a right smart.

Even though you may get the best job of roofing in the world, you think and hear, you would act wisely by getting a dozen or so one-gallon molasses buckets and have them handy in the attic.

These buckets are to be laid in readiness for the inevitable breakthrough, which may come within 30 days or 30 years.

A good idea is to have the buckets partly filled with sawdust, so that when the rain drops into them the noise will be subdued and will not embarrass you when visitors are in the house.

You may either use the bucket method or be content with sketches on your ceilings that look like maps of the Philippine Islands.

You often see metal troughs hanging around houses known as eaves. These eaves are things that never should have been invented. They will get stopped up with leaves if there is a tree within a mile. Cut out the eaves, brother, if you are still interested in getting yourself some domestic tranquility.

Among the things that put me in a lather is to go to the bathroom to draw my bath and find that someone has beat me to the draw. That is one thing I am going to correct, if I ever construct a dwelling again.

I well remember one morning, when our unimproved real estate was undergoing its improvement, that some older men were looking over the house plans under the big oak tree in what was to be our front yard.

"Only one bathroom?" one of the men wanted to know.

I must have favored him with at least a glance of lofty disdain. Only one bathroom? I'd say only one!

My thoughts flashed back to the days of my childhood. We didn't even have one bathroom, when I was in my swaddling-threes-corners.

Our bathroom was the kitchen, such room having been selected for that additional purpose because the cook stove there was pretty well adapted to heating water.

And, if I may say so to a mixed audience, the other accommodations of the "bathroom" in those days were 100 paces to the rear of the house, same to be located on a cold, dark night by the light of a smoking lantern.

Our kids were new at the time we were building. They had at their convenience a portable facility by means of which an emergency rest room could be established for them on a moment's notice, almost anywhere in or out of the house. Indeed, we used to take that portable contraption along when we went to grandma's. I well remember.

But now the children have grown up. One is in high school; and the other is old enough to go around telling the neighbors that I pour my coffee in a saucer—which I do, merely to expedite my morning sortie. The children are now full-fledged users of the bathroom, our one and only bathroom.

Take my advice, brother. When you build don't stop at one bathroom. Make it two, three, four bathrooms—anything but one.

Ah, yes, there ought to be something said at the peace table about how to build a house that will meet all the specifications of domestic tranquility.

lengths denying the dispatch. Chairman Tom Connally D., Tex., of the senate foreign relations committee, who helped draft the hemispheric collective security system to conform to U. S. constitutional processes also issued a statement.

"It is made plain in the act of Chapultepec that acts under it must be consistent with the purposes and principles of the international organization to be constructed at the San Francisco conference," Connally said.

"In effect, the act creates a regional organization for implementation by the international organization for peace under its provisions for regional organizations. The action taken here will strengthen and support the international organization."

Other major work of the conference includes final action today by the committee on long range problems on a revised "economic charter" and adoption by the Inter-American committee of a combined U. S. Uruguayan resolution on freedom of the press.

YANK SOLDIERS SPEND 11 DAYS UNDER FORBACH

Civilians, Troops Live In Cellars While Nazis Shell Town

FORBACH, Alsace, March 6—American soldiers spent 11 hellish days underground with 8,000 residents of Forbach while the Germans blasted the town into ruins. Men of the 276th Infantry Regiment of the 70th Division had battled into Forbach February 22. They quickly drove the Germans from three quarters of the city, but the attack stalled at railroad tracks. A 20-foot embankment protected the Germans.

Then for 11 days and nights the Americans stayed under cover, seldom risking the bloody streets, as German artillery, mortars and rockets steadily pounded the town. The families of Forbach shared their homes and cellars with the troops, ate with them and died with them.

Capt. John Bryant of Milton, Mass., civil affairs officer for the town, said about half of the population "wanted to get the hell out of there in the worst way."

Since the only road out of town was under enemy observation and steady fire, military authorities would not permit a mass evacuation.

Troops and civilians lived underground with holes chipped between cellars for communications. Army trucks and jeeps risked the run into Forbach with supplies for the troops. The French Red Cross fed the people, although for two days the civilians chose hunger to the risk of walking to the food distribution center.

The city was almost without water for the 11 days, depending on one pump. Even this was not safe. Two youths were killed while hurrying up the Saarbrücken road toward the pump. The same shell killed an American soldier who was taking a breather in a doorway.

A "freedom attack" was launched yesterday morning. The soldiers rose from the cellars, gathered in doorways and without artillery preparation, started across the railroad tracks.

They clambered up the embankment and in hand-to-hand knife fighting and at point blank rifle range killed Germans holding houses along the tracks.

One medical aid man, Pfc. Orville Meyer of Oconto, Falls, Wis., followed one company across the tracks at 9 a. m. yesterday. The Germans fired at him despite the Red Cross on his helmet.

Meyer stayed with the company all day and part of the night trying to aid seven casualties. One man died. Five of the wounded were in three houses and a sixth was in a house across the street.

He treated the five but every time he attempted to cross the street German fire drove him back. He finally tied bandages and sulfa packets to a rock and threw it across. All of the wounded were evacuated that night.

In the first 36 hours the troops advanced a mile and a quarter through bitter resistance and tonight they were driving north of the town close to German soil.

"But it doesn't mean a damned thing to us whether we're in France or Germany," said Capt. Norman Sunderen of Salina, Kans. "We'd just as soon kill these krauts anywhere."

BENEFIT BAND CONCERT TO BE THURSDAY NIGHT

A Red Cross benefit band concert will be held Thursday, at 8:30 p. m. in the Circleville high school auditorium.

The Circleville band has been practicing for several weeks for the program, which will be under the direction of C. F. Zaenglein.

The band concert, to which the public is invited, is one of the features of the program being staged by Circleville schools in their efforts to meet the goal of $1,500 set for them in the Red Cross war fund drive.

Schools have already raised sizeable amounts through jitney lunches, sales tax stamp drives, scrap paper collections, candy and cookie sales. Also planned are a style show, plays, dances, intramural basketball games, skits and movies.

Most of the school children are too young to give blood and participate in other Red Cross activities, so they hope to do their part in the fund-raising campaign.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Private Pearl Valentine, of the 218th Field Artillery, and who is serving with this group in the Philippines, has sent to his wife, Mrs. Anna Mae Valentine, 377 Weldon avenue, a copy of a commendation received by the battalion.

Headquarters 191st Field Artillery Group, APO 323.

To the Officers and men of the 218th Field Artillery Bn.

With the relief of the 218th FA Bn. from attachment to the 191st FA Group, I wish to express to the officers and men of this fine battalion our sincere appreciation of the friendship, cooperation and loyalty you have always extended to us. I realize this communication is a poor medium in which to express the personal feelings of the officers and the men of the 191st FA Group toward the 218th FA Bn. However, time and circumstances prevent my appearing before you. Our relationship has been perfect, whether it was in combat or on the baseball field. The close and splendid association has resulted in the forming of many friendships between the officers and men of the two units, and may they be renewed in the not-too-distant future.

To serve with you and to have your battalion attached to the group has been a privilege. Your efficiency, experience in combat, and strict attention to duty have been an inspiration and incentive for all of us to follow in your footsteps. You richly deserve the fine reputation your battalion has in this theatre. As I have often said, "The 218th FA Bn. is the finest battalion of the field artillery we have seen in the SWPA."

"Upon our departure, we extend to our friends in the 218th FA Bn. our best wishes and may your success continue and your reputation always be 'tops.' Best of Luck! See you in Manila! Signed—George W. Williamson, Jr., colonel FA, commanding."

Pvt. Valentine will have been overseas a year in May.

two-plane German Pick-a-back combinations. The pick-a-backs were the first shot down by Eighth Air Force fighters, and each consisted of a single-engine Focke-Wulf 190 fighter atop a twin-engine Junkers 88 bomber. Propellers of both planes were spinning.

Some of the FW 190s jettisoned their JU 88s when the 55th attacked. Of the six combinations encountered by the group, five were shot down. On the way back, the group destroyed a total of 17 Nazi planes, 12 in the air and five on the ground. It also destroyed 13 locomotives and damaged six tank cars, a switch tower and a railroad station. All the 55th Mustangs returned safely.

Lieut. Jackson wears the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, awarded for "meritorious service in aerial combat." (An Oak Leaf Cluster equals the award with which it is worn). The Ohio pilot entered the AAF as an enlisted man in July, 1942, became a cadet in September of the same year at Curtis Field, Brady, Tex., and was commissioned as Moore Field in July, 1943. He is credited with destroying a Nazi plane in combat over Germany.

POSTCARD DATED 1891 SAYS GOLDFISH ON WAY

CLEVELAND—It was 54 years ago that Fred C. Bond, then only 14 years old, ordered a pair of goldfish from the U. S. Commission of Fish and Fisheries in Washington.

The other day he received a postcard, dated Nov. 20, 1891, advising him that the fish were being delivered to him. A note accompanying the card hoped the delay had not inconvenienced Bond.

"It's a good thing I didn't hold my breath," Bond, now an insurance man, said.

Do YOU Own A "Scratching" Dog?

If you own and are fond of a dog that is continually scratching, digging, rubbing, and biting himself until his skin is raw and sore, don't just feel sorry for him. The dog can't help himself. But you may. He may be clean and flea free and just suffering from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of his skin. Do as thousands of pleased dog owners are doing. At any good drug store, pet or sport shop, get a 25c package of Rex Hunters Dog Powders, and give them once a week. Note the quick improvement. One owner writes: "My female setter on Sept. 29th did not have a handful of hair on her body—all scratched and bitten off. I gave her the powders as directed. By Nov. 15th she was all haired out. Learn what they will do for your dog. Make a 25c test. (Economy size box for only $1.00).

UNRRA PROGRESS
WHATEVER have been the difficulties encountered by UNRRA so far, apparently many have been solved. Fred K. Hoehler, director of the Displaced Persons Division, has just returned from Europe with the plan for handling refugees. The problem is enormous, for of the estimated 15,000,000 homeless, many are being moved further away before the retreating Nazis. All of these must be "screened" by the military forces for security reasons. Then, it is expected that 6,000,000 of them will choose to walk back home, rather than be transported.
UNRRA, which now has accredited officials working at Supreme Headquarters, under a signed agreement with General Eisenhower, is recruiting about 450 teams of ten to twelve persons each. These will conduct assembly centers where routes converge. Flying squads are being organized which will give roadside help, including food and medical treatment.
The million or so who will be found, after national screenings, to have no country, create the final problem. They will be helped to return to the country of their origin, unless it is politically dangerous for them to do so.
The work which is already being done on Germany's western borders is a good beginning on one of the toughest of the Allies' postwar headaches.

FOR HOME AND COUNTRY
LOOKING at the newspaper pictures of American marines in small invasion craft, streaking toward a landing place at Iwo Jima with hell-fire belching at them from the shore and caves and hills, people at home may get a pretty fair picture of the nature of this Pacific war. The marines themselves, oldest and toughest of our national defense services, say its the worst fighting they have run into in 168 years. And there is plenty more to go through before this war is won.
There is still a thrill in such pictures and the accompanying reports. But it is not for thrills that American boys are fighting and dying in such strange and remote places. It should be kept steadily in mind that they are doing it for their country. This means their people back home, the boys and girls now growing up, and all who are going to be born and live and grow up here in the future—they hope in peace and security.
The great majority of Americans appre-

Met Dudley Carpenter and learned that the Red Cross campaign is going extremely well, folk apparently realizing the financial needs of the organization of the great group. Everyone should contribute and enjoy having that much of a hand in making life more pleasant for our fighting men. Maybe the government should do what the Red Cross is doing, but it doesn't and if the Red Cross does not do it then it will not be done. So, give if you have not already done so. And do not wait until a solicitor calls on you. Don't run the risk of losing your share of satisfaction out of a contribution.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 6 — The straw polls are galluping over the country, "an overwhelming majority support" for compulsory military education.
I doubt them. I do not think the proposition has any great support, let alone majority following, and I will tell you why:
It was O. Henry who once wrote that straw votes show only how the hot air is blowing. These polls ask such questions as:
"Are you for military training? Should it be universal?"
Nearly everyone is for "military training," and not one in a hundred thousand people in this country realizes that "universal," in this case, is not being used in its dictionary sense, but to cover with diplomatic language, a bold drafting of 17 or 18 year old youths from their homes and schools, and the surroundings in which they are being raised, for a year of service to the Army.
Why do not the polls ask the people what they mean, namely:
"Do you favor a compulsory peacetime draft of the teen-age youths of this country for a year in the Army?"
An equally great deception on the people is being practised by pollers who also ask:
"Do you favor national defense for this country after the war and military training thereafter?"
Who is against national defense or training to get it? Not a handful, but that is not the proposition involved.
If all the youths were drafted for a year, you would still have to provide an Army and Navy for national defense. Such kids could only be a feeder reserve; they could not be either the Army or the Navy.
As for the "military training" part of it, there are dozens of ways in which this could be accomplished without taking teen-agers away from their homes and schools for a year—including the installation of compulsory training in their home high schools and colleges, enlargement of the national guard, creating several more West Points and naval academies in the country, on the west coast, Great Lakes, in the (politicians should like this) south.
But are such intelligent questions asked the people? Not in a single polling instance to my knowledge.
You might expect the magazine and newspaper pollers to make such glaring omissions in their gathering of public thought, but now comes an educational group, polling college presidents, and making a somewhat similar mistake in emphasis.
They ask about delaying the proposition

ciate these plain and stirring facts. Their hearts are with the fighting men, and in their souls is a constant and unspoken apology for the fact that they are safe and comfortable at home, while their defenders are in peril and hardship. The defenders ask only that their services shall be appreciated and remembered, and that the people at home also prove worthy of the times.
cription of a Boy," they agreeing that it fits their sons perfectly. Filched it off Harry and it appears today in another part of the paper.
A dark, rainy day for the funeral of my good friend Renick Dunlap, as fine a citizen as these parts ever boasted and who was my host at the several occasions of his famous annual Ham Dinner. Big figures in politics and business came from all parts of the nation for that event and all will miss Renick. One could write columns about Renick and only tell part of his interesting life, his interest in people and the community in which he lived. A good man has gone ahead to blaze the trail for all his friends who one day will join him.

The sunshine will come and the work will be done, including my Victory Garden, which if it is not better than City Solicitor Joe Adkins', I will plow under.

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

Diagnosing Ills Of The Digestion

THE nervous system is the part of us that feels and has sensations, but not even the nervous system obtrudes itself as often into our consciousness as the digestive system. Nor is even the nervous system as sensitive to various psychological stimuli.
A disagreeable sight or bad news or a quarrel is just as likely to make one nauseated as it is to affect the nervous system in any way.
Primitive Organ
This can be rationalized by saying that the digestive system is the old primitive organ. In the lowest form of animal life, and in the earliest days of our development, we are stomach and intestine before we are anything else.
But besides that, the digestive system is very well supplied with nerve plexuses and has many connections with the central nervous system. The solar plexus was the part that got into popular knowledge first, but there are many plexuses besides the solar all along the length of the digestive canal and these are connected on the one side to the central nervous system and on the other to other plexuses of the digestive tract.
So on the one side an emotional state may be transmitted to the stomach or intestines and on the other, a local condition in the intestine, let us say, may be transmitted to other parts and show up as stomach or nervous symptoms.
Form of Indigestion
To put this in a different way, when a doctor has found that a person under his care has a form of indigestion which is not due to organic disease he can begin to figure whether it is emotional in origin or reflex.
The first step in solving a problem in indigestion then is to decide whether there is any real organic disease present. And this is no simple task. One can envy the fellow who knows he has acid indigestion and that all he needs is plenty of soda.
He goes along in the happy belief that he has solved everything, that acid stomach is an entity, that there is nothing else behind it, and when he has calmed the symptoms with soda, everything is restored to normality.
Pitfalls and Blind Alleys
But the digestive tract is a long and winding road, lined with pitfalls and blind alleys and subject to all sorts of derangement. The first step for the physician who would successfully treat a patient of this kind is to get him to tell the most complete story or history of all his symptoms. Then the whole man must be examined from head to foot.

Then the blood and the digestive secretions must be submitted to laboratory examinations by chemical and microscopic means. The X-ray is called into action and all the course of the digestive tract examined and outlined. Only then is there a possibility of deciding whether stomach ulcer, gallstones, inflammation of the small or large intestine or appendix trouble is present.
It seems like a large order when there are so many sick people of this sort, but nothing short of this is proper consideration for the people of the present scientific age.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Answer: Sciatica is often the result of focal infection and focal infection is often under a gold crown.

Answer: In those who use the eyes a good deal, astigmatism, or other need for glasses, will cause styes.

Answer: No, and it requires investigation by a doctor.

HELEN COMES HOME
by Watkins E. Wright

HELEN MILLER is an attractive young woman of 20, who has been joined by a playboy.
PAUL WENTWORTH, a southern plantation owner, who married ZOE NORRIS, Helen lives in an apartment with her parents.
AGGIE JONES, a pleasant, 30-year-old self-confessed "old maid," who urged Helen to try to mend her broken heart by dating.
PHILIP BROWNELL, foreman and manager of the war plant owned and operated by Helen's father.
AUNT MINERVA, a shrewd business woman who drives a hard bargain and hopes to match Helen and her niece during Philip's stay in New York on vacation.
YESTERDAY, Aggie doctors her cold in an effort to attend her war plant class, while Helen recalls her romance with Paul Wentworth. Helen must deal with her father's disapproval of her liaison with Paul, and as she dresses to meet the handsome Philip Brownell.
CHAPTER THREE
HELEN HAD laughed when her aunt had said that Philip Brownell might have caught her on the rebound, and she retorted: "You talk as though I were a rubber ball, Aunt Minerva."
"Well, you're not," was her aunt's quick comeback. "A rubber ball has resiliency. You can bang it full of dents, but it always reverts to its original shape and form."
"Spare me the lecture, darling," Helen said. "I hope this paragon you mention can take a lot of work and responsibility off your shoulders."
"He can do that, all right. He's brought up a young son, and he's started into being a Lakeville first citizen." Her aunt paused and then said: "He's an exceptionally fine man, Helen and, as a matter of fact, you and he have quite a bit in common."
"How do you figure that out?" she had wanted to know.
"His wife ran off and left him," her aunt replied. "Seems he married an actress during one of his rare weak moments. The woman called the call of the footlights after a time and packed up and left him flat."
"You mean he's a divorced man?"
"No, he's a sod-widower. Fate took a hand, and the woman got her just deserts. She died of the flu while she was trying to make Hollywood sit up and take notice."
"How awful!"
"Awful, my foot!" said Aunt Minerva. "Everything's worked out for the best. Philip was left free to go on with his own way of living, and he seems fairly happy. Got a cute son, too. Calls me 'Miss Munster'."
"He sounds," she had said, "too perfect to be alive and breathing. This Philip Brownell?"
"Pishposh!" Aunt Minerva said, and made a sound like a snort. "If you had a grain of common, everyday horse sense, you'd do something about it."
"About what—for goodness sake?"
"About landing a man like that!" said her aunt.
But she hadn't done anything about it. She had stayed right on in New York, determined to keep on staying there—not budging an inch—until she was convinced beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt that she could go back home, look the town squarely in the face, and laugh.
She turned away from the window and walked over to the mantel. She was reaching up to replace a loosened strand of hair when she saw a snapshot of the old Miller homestead which Aggie had stuck in the mirror. A group of young people was sitting on the wide front porch: Paul Wentworth, with Zoe Norris close beside him, and Aggie—who had been home on a short vacation—eyeing them with a decidedly skeptical expression.

Looking at it, Helen remembered that she was the one who had operated the camera, and that it was on the particular day that she had begun to wonder seriously about Paul, wonder why he had stopped talking so much and so enthusiastically about their approaching marriage. Aggie, who never minded a thing, had gone some wondering also. "That guy's too handsome for his own good," she had remarked. "And what that little stuff-brain Zoe is doing to his ego is certainly a caution." And later, after she had returned to New York, she had written: "You should have been operating a machine gun on that day, Helen, instead of a camera."
Perhaps Aggie was right. Helen thought, turning the snapshot face down behind a vase. Anyway, the fact that nearly everyone in town knew that she and Paul were engaged had apparently made no difference at all to Zoe. She worked from the basis that all was fair—and no holds barred—when two girls wanted the same man. What had once been a twosome—Paul Wentworth and Helen Miller—had become a threesome what Aggie called "one of those infernal triangles."
Maybe she should have tried a great deal harder to hold Paul, to keep him for herself alone—especially after all the heartache she had experienced when the gossip began saying that he was meeting Zoe Norris on the sly. Maybe she should have—
Just then the buzzer rang. She stepped to the door and pressed the button that would release the lock downstairs.
After waiting a moment or two, she opened the door and walked out into the hall.
"Two flights up, you know!" she called down over the banister. "Good for the figger!"
"Hello!" Philip Brownell said, looking up through the stairwell. He was a little on the Gary Cooper order, she decided. Nice broad shoulders, crisp dark hair, and eyes that had a twinkle in them. Over six feet tall, probably, and not in the least stooped. "He's exactly what I'd want my own son to be," Aunt Minerva had said, "if I had one. Or my nephew-in-law, if I'm ever fortunate enough to have one presented to me." Aunt Minerva, developing matchmaking tendencies, and not being at all subtle about it!
Philip reached the top of the stairs. "All set to go?" he asked. "All set!" said Helen.
"I brought you some gardenias," said Philip as they walked into the living room. "I wanted to bring you flowers that would make you think of home. Gardenias do smell and look a little like our Cape Jasmine, you know, so I chose them."
"Thank you very much," Helen said. "That was very thoughtful of you." And as she took the box from him, she could hear Paul Wentworth saying, "Darling, your skin is just like the petals of a gardenia—so white, and velvety, and fragrant!" She brushed aside the memory. "They're lovely!" she said as she lifted the folds of tissue.
"I got a touch of nostalgia myself," Philip confessed, "when I

ANALYZE THE LEAD
HABITS in bridge are usually costly to their owners. But one good habit, which any player can acquire, is to make whatever deductions he can from the opening lead, and try to see if there is any way he can take advantage of the information. Sometimes the information is negative; failure to lead a certain other suit tells something about the opener's holding. In it. Sometimes the information is very definite, placing a particular card or cards of the opened suit in the leader's hand.

cashed two diamonds, setting the contract.
The contract was really an open-and-shut proposition if South had been on his toes. It required no clairvoyancy to realize that the lead of the spade J indicated West also had the 10. Such being the case, South could have thrown his spade Q under the K without it costing him a trick. For the 9 was marked as sure to win on a finesse. If South had thus tossed away the spade Q, he could have won the returned diamond, dropped trumps in two rounds, finessed the spade 9 and then used the spade A for a discard of a diamond. By so doing, he could have limited his losses in diamonds to one trick instead of two. But by playing low on the first trick and retaining his spade Q, he had blocked himself.

Monday Club Is 'Invited To Pacific'

"An Invitation to Australia and New Zealand" was the topic used by Mrs. Depew Head, of Columbus, who spoke before members of the Monday club at its regular meeting Monday in the club room, Memorial hall.

The theme of study for the year, "New Frontiers In Our Changing Time" was illustrated by Mrs. Head with excerpts from three recent books, "An American Looks at Australia," by Dr. George Harding, an Ohioan, "Introducing Australia," by Grattan, and "Understanding New Zealand," by Frederick L. Wood.

Mrs. Head spoke of Australia as the world's curiosity shop and New Zealand as the Switzerland of the South Pacific. She said that these thinly populated countries present a high standard of living in many ways. Some of their methods of government attract us, for example, the Australian ballot system of voting which the United States has adopted.

The island continent was called New South Wales until 1814 when the name was changed to Australia. This continent has enormous mineral wealth in every thing except oil. Sheep raising and the wool industry are outstanding, the country producing the finest wool in the world.

New Zealand has no slums, has grown up without great wealth or great poverty. New Zealand is an experiment in the rights of man. These countries invite our attention.

Due to the delightful people, lovely climatic conditions and natural resources, these countries may be a lure for settlement by many of our soldiers who have fought in their army centers.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Head's talk, large pictures of Australian scenes were enjoyed by the club members. Printed lists of different types of books which are read today, were left with each member.

Mrs. Lemuel Weldon, club president, concluded the usual business meeting.

RED CROSS AIR EVACS

Meet the Girls Who Are on the Alert The Clock Around to Cheer the Wounded

A SHAVE, soup and sandwiches, cigarettes, some swing music and a smile—with these, the Red Cross air evacs, who greet ambulance planes on arrival, lighten the wounded's road home from the fronts.

By BERNICE GOETZ

Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—As the sturdy C-54 puts down on the runway—perhaps in Iceland or Bermuda, Ascension Island or Natal—its precious cargo of wounded throws off some of their apathy. Three more stops... two more ships... one... HOME.

But it's a devious route, even by air, from battlefield to the United States. So, at the request of the base and flight surgeons, the American Red Cross has set up a program at Air Transport Command stopovers to help lighten the tedium of the trip.

The pattern is largely the same at all the bases. An ETA (estimated time of arrival) message notifies the Red Cross girls of the plane's imminent landing and by the time it rolls to a stop, they are waiting on the airstrip ready to go aboard.

Planes are no respecter of hours and the program goes on all around the clock, so shifts have been arranged for the "air evacs" of 24 hours on duty and 48 hours off.

When they board the plane one takes the cockpit, the other the tail. They check with the flight nurse and traffic clerk on special cases and special diets and find out what comfort articles are required. Then the hospital crew is relieved for other duties and the Red Cross assumes charge until take-off.

A bright-eyed fellow in the bottom litter tugs at the coat sleeve of a worker and asks, "Isn't this Meekes Field?" She answers, "Yes, weren't you here last June?" He looks up at her laughing face and comes back, "That's right. I was a little green then myself."

Another patient from above calls, "Gee, she speaks English. Hold my hand. I'm dreaming." From across the aisle a soldier asks the old stand-by, "Where you from?"

Chatting gaily, the girls help the ambulatory patients off the plane to the transients' club near the airstrip—time, weather and health permitting.

Warm food, brought to the club in chests from one of the base kitchens, is set on tables around the clock. Whichever meal it is, the menu is as "stateside" as facilities permit, with ham and eggs, milk, and ice cream doing double duty.

"The look on the face of the boy who hasn't seen ice cream for two years is enough to justify the existence of us all here," said one of the air evacs recently.

Comfortable and Pleasant—Magazines, books, cigarettes, a phonograph machine, often a radio, are distributed around the club making it as pleasant a spot as possible wherein to spend a few hours.

The furniture is softly cushioned. A handicraft project is underway now at one of the stops to devise bamboo backrests and tray holders for the litter patients.

After mealtime one soldier asks for writing materials to send a letter home. Another sits in a corner reading. Barbering is not in the daily routine but now and then a GI receives a shave and haircut.

The stopovers are usually no more than 50 minutes, but occasionally, if the plane is detained, movies are shown. One base boasts a singing trio among its permanent personnel.

If certain patients are too ill to be moved, they are fed aboard the plane. Some can balance trays on their chests. Others require hand-feeding.

There was the case of a paratrooper with a chest wound who announced that he wouldn't eat a meal. His appetite improved, however, when a smiling girl played waitress to him.

Methodist church will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Noah G. Spangler, West High street. Mrs. Hervey J. Swoyer, Mrs. Grace Renick and Mrs. Harold Danner will be assisting hostesses.

The dinner and program was attended by 100 friends of the Fudge family. Guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Fischer. The dining room, which was decorated in pre-Easter colors with a profusion of ivy vines, was in charge of Mrs. Wayne Pontius and her committee, Mrs. Qenam Tosca and Mrs. C. J. Rockey. An anniversary cake and tall, white candles decorated the table reserved for the honored guests. Rev. and Mrs. Fudge and family, a gift to the honored guests by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Baunum, completed the table decorations.

The delicious meal, which featured tasty home-made cake iced in pastel colors, was furnished by the ladies of the church. Following ing the dinner, an appropriate program, prepared by Mrs. Maynard Marion and her committee, Mrs. Roy Helwagen and Mrs. E. F. Martin, was presented. Harold J. Bowers acted as master of ceremonies and in well-chosen words expressed the sentiments of the group in extending congratulations and best wishes to the guests of honor. Mr. Bowers stressed the successful ministry of Rev. Fudge in Ashville and commended him on his leadership in other fields, such as his work with the young people of the church, the Red Cross, and the Boy Scout movement. Mr. Bowers emphasized the fact that many of our national leaders of both the past and the present have placed faith in prayer and Divine Providence, and concluded the talk with the hope that those present would re-dedicate their personal leadership in the church, home, school, and community to the end that in the next ten years, this community will have been made a better place in which to live.

"WHERE SERVICE PREDOMINATES"

Following Mr. Bowers' address of welcome the following program was given: "Song of Friendship" by the ladies' chorus, Miss Mary Jane Higley, Miss Kathryn Bowers, Mrs. Roland Fetheringham, Mrs. Lowell Cooper, Mrs. E. F. Martin, Mrs. Harry Trego, and Mrs. Maynard Marion; "Anniversary Reading," Mrs. Frank Hudson; vocal solo, "Beautiful Dreamer," Faye Johnson; trumpet solo, "Cygnus," Virginia Baum; vocal trio, "American Prayer," Mrs. Eldon Swoyer, Mrs. Robert Mallory, and Mrs. Maynard Marion. The master of ceremonies presented Will W. Fischer, who cleverly presented Rev. and Mrs. Fudge and family with a surprise gift of new ten dollar bills in keeping with the occasion. Mr. Fischer presented the anniversary cake, a gift from the ladies' society, to Mrs. Fudge. E. F. Martin, in behalf of the Sunday school, presented to Mrs. Fudge the baskets of beautiful pink and white snapdragons, which had graced the altar at the opening service. Rev. and Mrs. Fudge expressed their thanks to the members and others who had sent gifts and who had worked so hard and well to make the occasion a success. "Beautiful Savior" was sung by the ladies' chorus; piano solo, "Andante Cantabile," Joan Johnson; Malotte-Dels arrangement of the "Lord's Prayer" was sung by the ladies' chorus; and the group singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" concluded the program. Miss Joan Johnson was the accompanist for all the musical numbers.

The committees and all others who took part are to be congratulated for the success of the meeting which was one of the most enjoyable ever held in the local church.

Akron Ellet And Middletown Still In Running For 1945 Honors

COLUMBUS, March 6—Ohio's two defending scholastic basketball champions—Middletown and Akron Ellet—today remained very much in the running as the 1945 tournaments entered the district rounds.

Akron Ellet, which won the class B championship last year by trouncing Philo and Lima St. Johns in the Columbus finals, plays an undefeated Columbiana squad in the Kent district eliminations tonight.

Philo, erratic in regular season play, has advanced to the district rounds by eking out a 33-32 victory over Cambridge St. Benedict at Zanesville. St. Johns was eliminated early last week.

Ashville, undefeated in regular season play, meets Columbus St. Marys tonight at the Westerville Class B tournament.

Lockland Wayne, which scored a 35-23 victory over Milford for its 18th win, will meet Wyoming Thursday at Cincinnati.

At least a half-dozen other mighty Class B squads, including undefeated Seneca and Farmer, also return to tourney competition this week.

Meanwhile, the Class A contenders pushed forward to challenge the undefeated Middletown "hampion."

At Toledo, Woodward, undefeated in regular play this year, opened its tournament play last night and defeated its traditional Toledo rival, Waite, for its 15th victory.

Woodward again may turn up in the finals in a manner similar to last year when it bowled over Canton Lehman before losing to the Middies in the finals.

Another Canton squad — the point-a-minute Timken Trojans—will tackle Youngstown East Friday in the Youngstown Class B district rounds. The Trojans have lost only one game, to McKinley, this season.

Canton McKinley, after steaming through the sectionals last week, are scheduled to play Campbell Memorial.

Bellevue, which soundly walloped Willard, 59-17, last Saturday, will meet Norwalk Friday at the Sandusky Class A district tournament.

Cincinnati's favored team, St. Xavier, will clash with Cincinnati Elder in Friday's district tourney opener, while Norwood and Hughes will meet in the other Class A round. St. Xavier, the defending district champion, has won 19 of 23 games this season.

Newark, defending champion last year, will meet Columbus North Friday in the opening round of the Delaware Class A tourney.

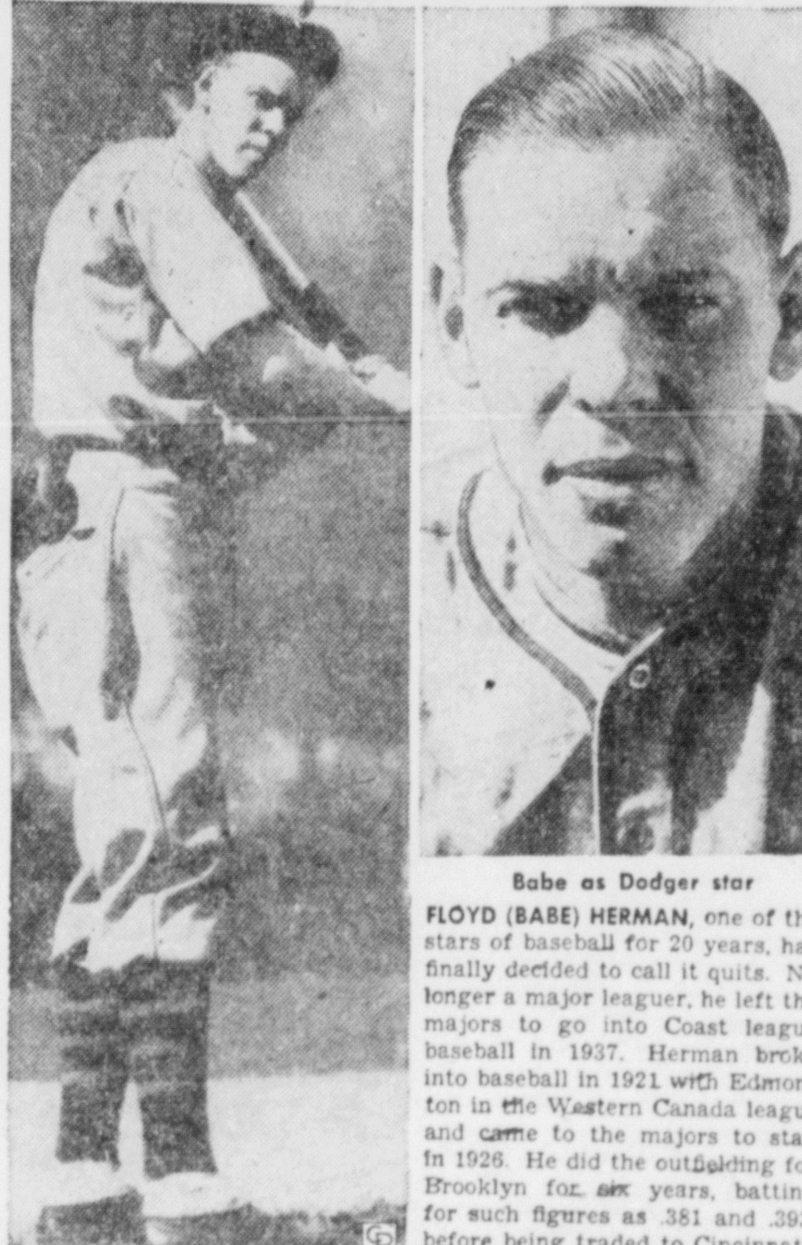

CHICAGO, March 6 — DePaul university, having given up hope of receiving a bid to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's tournament, announced today it would enter its basketball team in the annual New York invitational tournament to be held in Madison Square Garden, March 17, 19 and 21.

CHICAGO, March 6 — Three University of Wisconsin basketball players will play in the seventh annual world's championship tournament here March 19-24.

Capt. Ray Patterson, high-scoring Wisconsin forward, and guard Bill Johnson have signed with the Dow Chemical Team of Midland, Mich., while Des Smith, Patterson's running mate at forward, has signed with the Oshkosh, Wis., All Stars.

FLOYD (BABE) HERMAN, one of the stars of baseball for 20 years, has finally decided to call it quits. No longer a major leaguer, he left the majors to go into Coast League baseball in 1937. Herman broke into baseball in 1921 with Edmonton in the Western Canada league and came to the majors to stay in 1925. He did the outpacing for Brooklyn for six years, batting for such figures as 381 and 393, before being traded to Cincinnati, then Chicago, then Pittsburgh and Cincy.

BILL OSMANSKI RESCUES BUDDY ON PACIFIC ISLE

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC—Delayed—Lt. William (Bullet Bill) Osmanski, a Navy dentist with a Marine Corps unit, has been cited for saving the life of a companion trapped in quicksand in the wildest of native country. Osmanski himself narrowly escaped death.

Osmanski was a fullback with Holy Cross College and the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football league. He and a fellow officer went on a canoe trip to search for bananas. They started to wade across a river, but on reaching the opposite shore, the companion of Osmanski, a Navy doctor, began to sink in the sand.

Osmanski freed himself and finally got a log and rope to his companion, pulling him to shore after he had sunk almost to his chin.

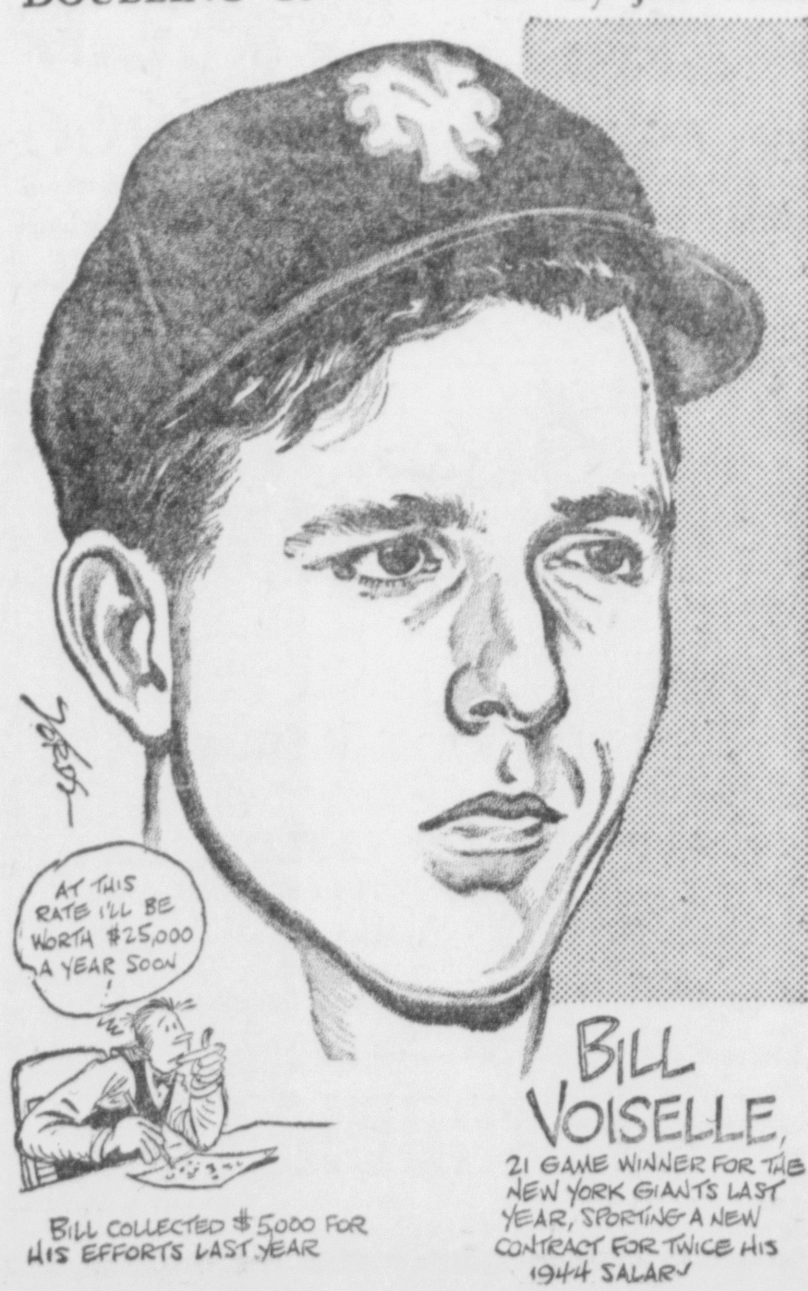

Later, as the pair started down stream to their camp, they noted several crocodiles sunning themselves on the banks of the stream.

"It was only then that I had time to be scared," Osmanski said.

The Providence, R. I., veteran coached the Camp Lejeune, N. C. Marines last fall before going overseas. He keeps in shape by swimming, boating, and calisthenics. Despite his 200-pound bulk, he rivals the Pacific natives as a tree climber, going up coconut trees in lightning style.

IOWA DECLINES NCAA BID; OHIO STATE MAY PLAY

IOWA CITY, Ia., March 6.—For the second straight year, Iowa's basketball team announced today it would not play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's championship tournament.

Iowa, as Big Ten champion, was the No. 1 choice to represent the N. C. A. A.'s fourth district in the tournament, but the team voted yesterday that if all the players could not make the trip the Hawkeyes would not compete.

Herb Wilkinson, star guard and a dental student, and Co-Capt. Ned Postels, chemistry student, said it would be impossible for them to make the trip due to their school's stepped up academic program.

Iowa finished second in the conference race a year ago and was invited to the N. C. A. A. tournament, but it turned down the offer for similar reasons.

Ohio State, which won the 1944 Big Ten title and finished second this year, is expected to receive an invitation this year in place of the Hawkeyes.

WASHINGTON BASKETBALL BOYS SCORED 545 POINTS

Other members of the squad were: Stonerock, 38; Ayers, 23; Rittinger, 26; Scott, 19; Marshall, 11.

HERNDON IN DEBATE

Leon Herndon, former director of the OPA, recently returned from France, and Louis Fischer, author of the new book, "Empire," will be on opposite sides of the question, "Can France Regain Her Place as a World Power?" when it is discussed on "America's Town Meeting," Thursday. Herndon believes that France can rise to a leading position, while Fischer feels that the fall of France and the political situation there relegate to the country to the role of a second rate power for many years to come. Each speaker will be joined in his viewpoint by another expert. George V. Denny Jr., is moderator.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Honor after honor comes to Dinah Shore, the nation's number one female singer, who is starred on Thursday nights. Dinah has just received another tribute—

the first entertainer in America to receive the Citizenship Medal award of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States this year. The announcement was made by Commander in Chief Jean A. Brunner.

Phil Spitalny and his Hour of Charm, all-girl orchestra and choir air a musical salute to spring in their March 18 broadcast, playing music appropriate to the season.

Followers of "Sammy Kaye's Varieties," have been asking about Sally Stuart, whose singing of current hits has been missed the past few weeks. Sally is resting under doctor's orders. Nothing serious and nothing a few weeks of sun won't cure. She is in Florida and is expected to return to the program shortly.

Cass Daley, high-ranking radio and film comedienne, this week began recording a series of ten of her most popular novelty tunes. Within a few weeks the platters will be released to radio stations throughout the country. Among the discs will be Cass' unique rendition of the favorite, "Together."

Metropolitan Opera Baritone John Baker, who is starred on "Steel Horizons" Sunday nights, has just received another tribute—

by having been chosen as a member of the famous Opera Quartette which will do an extensive tour of the country early next fall.

Ann Thomas, who has been playing Bob Burns' secretary, Sharon, and John Brown, as the salesman, Julius Fothoth, checked off the show last week and Bob will use visiting guest stars on future programs.

Easter has fallen on April 1 in 1804, 1866, 1877, 1888, 1923, 1934, 1945, and will be on that date again in 1956. The holiday may come at any time between March 22 and April 25, depending upon which date is the first Sunday after the Paschal full moon.

The Post Office Department handles 700,000,000 shipments a year averaging 5 pounds in weight, the air express 1,750,000 shipments averaging 20 pounds, and the Railway Express 200,000,000 shipments averaging, on account of war production, 60 pounds each.

Banning of books and plays in Boston apparently began back in 1792. At that time the authorities cracked down on Richard B. Sheridan's classic comedy, "School for Scandal," arresting the entire company after the play's first performance.

Pickaway County Boys and Girls Observe National 4-H Club Week

CLUB LEADERS MEET SET FOR THURSDAY NIGHT

Prizes To Be Awarded At Banquet Which Opens 1945 Program

Highlight of national 4-H club week in Pickaway county will be the Club Leaders' banquet set for 6:45 p. m. Thursday in Hanley's restaurant.

The banquet, sponsored by the Pickaway County Extension office, is for all 1944 leaders and assistant leaders. Prizes will be awarded to the various clubs and leaders. Plans for the 1945 program will be discussed.

One of the speakers will be a representative from the state 4-H club department. County Agent F. K. Blair said that efforts were being made to make the banquet an outstanding event to start off another year of 4-H club activity.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt has sent a message to the 1,700,000 farm boys and girls enrolled in 4-H club work who are this week celebrating 4-H club week. Boys and girls and their leaders all over the country will hold meetings similar to the one to be held in Circleville Thursday night.

In his message the President urges boys and girls to increase their efforts to raise food and otherwise aid the war effort "in this crucial war year 1945."

In making the message public War Food Administration spokesmen said the big jobs for farm boys and girls this year will be to produce and conserve food, to aid in scrap collections and war bond drives, to protect their health and to help with the farm work in place of those who have gone to war.

Since Pearl Harbor 4-H club members have planted 400,000 acres in victory gardens, canned 47,000,000 quarts of food, raised 33,000,000 chickens, 1,600,000 meat animals and 300,000 dairy cows, WFA spokesmen said.

until after the war, about types of training, ages, duration under "universal military training," but allow only one-fifth of their space for a few alternatives all of which and more I have suggested from time to time in this spot. They do not seem to realize what the proposition is (they are in good company in this as the Chamber of Commerce hardly allowed any thought of alternatives to be expressed in its poll.)

I started out against this undemocratic youth-draft (that is its right name) last September, writing that I knew it could not be stopped because it had the support of Mr. Roosevelt, the Army and Navy, but denouncing it anyway and recommending specific democratic means of obtaining the same objectives.

Now I tell you, I believe the proposition has been stopped dead, that it will not get through congress because a strong majority of people are against it—a fact the hotair polls have not discovered yet, but which is apparent in my mail and news gathering. If they want to ask a cold air question why do they not ask mothers and fathers:

"Do you want your sons or daughters taken away from you for a year by the state at the age of 17 or 18?"

That will get them an answer, more to the point than the questions they are asking. Also ask the people and the congress:

"If congress will not draft workers for war jobs, do you think congress should draft your teen age sons and daughters for a year in the army and navy?"

My fear now is that the revolution of the people to this youth-draft proposal will be so great, and the pique of draft-advocates in the war department so personal, that both leadership and sup-

KIWANIS CLUB MEMBERS HEAR FRANK FISCHER

"Pros and Cons" of various questions of the day were discussed by Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, at the Kiwanis club meeting held Monday night in Hanley's restaurant. Mr. Fischer stated that one of the most important functions of schools was to give students an "open mind". He said there was only a small percent of things which were 100 per cent wrong and a small amount 100 per cent right.

"Viewing two sides of issues, respecting other viewpoints are necessary. That is why we have two political parties, that is the difference between the totalitarian way and ours", the speaker declared.

He pointed out that while many regard the happenings at Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941, as a disaster, it was "the finest thing the Japs could have done for our side."

He gave arguments on both sides on: universal draft, military training, unconditional surrender (other methods have failed) federal control of education, President Roosevelt's record, negro and Jewish questions.

Mr. Fischer was introduced by Tom A. Renick, program chairman for the meeting.

Preceding Mr. Fischer's talk Chaplain W. L. Sprouse conducted an impressive memorial service in honor of the clubs' most prominent member, Renick Dunlap, who died Friday. The brief service included prayer, a hymn and reading of a tribute to Mr. Dunlap.

Virgil Cress was the winner of the "quiz" program.

port for a real democratic military training program will be lost.

College presidents, educators, churchmen, mothers and fathers should take hold of this situation affirmatively and not only defeat the compulsory draft but demand a democratic youth military training system, which will be efficient in creating a reserve for the trying times which are so clearly ahead of this nation. That is essential.

Scouter Gives 'Partial Description Of A Boy'

Almost every parent in Pickaway county will agree with "a partial description of a boy" presented here by Jasper Steele, a field executive of Boy Scouts of America.

After a male baby has grown out of long clothes and has acquired pants and freckles and so much dirt that well-meaning relatives do not dare kiss it between meals, it becomes a Boy.

A boy is Nature's irrefutable answer to mankind's belief that there is no such thing as perpetual motion. A boy is a man minus pride, ambition, pretense, greed and about 110 pounds. When he grows up, he will trade romance, energy, bashfulness, warts and a snag-proof stomach for these other possessions. But then, a boy is usually getting the worst of it in some trade or another.

The world is so full of boys that it is impossible to touch off a fire cracker, strike up a band or pitch a ball game without collecting about a thousand of them.

Boys are not ornamental, but they are useful. If it were not for boys the newspapers of the country would go undelivered and unread; and a thousand circus elephants would die of thirst. Boys are useful in running errands. The zest with which a boy does an errand is only equalled by the spirit in which a 20-year-old Missouri mule pulls a wagon load of bricks. With the aid of five or six adults, a boy can easily do the family errands.

The boy is a natural spectator, watching things is his special talent. He watches parades, fires, fights, ball games, ice wagons, mud turtles, bumble bees, automobiles, trains, boats, hand organs, and airplanes with equal fervor.

But he will not watch the clock. The man who invents a clock that will stand on its head and sing a song when it strikes will confer an inestimable boon to millions of families whose boys are forever coming home to dinner about supper time.

Boys are not popular except with their parents. But they do

FSA Families Gross $40 Per Acre, During 1944; Report Reveals

The average gross income from 52 Farm Security Administration secured farms in this locality in 1944 was $40.00 per acre, Cornell E. Copeland, supervisor of the F. S. A., United States Department of Agriculture, revealed Tuesday. Forty-four of these farms are located in Pickaway and eight in Fayette counties.

Financial reports on the productivity of these farms showed: $18.00 per acre operational costs; $10.00 per acre, family living costs. The remaining $12.00 an acre income was used to purchase war bonds, capital goods and to pay debts on real estate and chattels. Debt payments constituted 28 percent of gross income or about twice the average annual payment.
